- Abstract: This study is summarized from the importance of its variables (the typical form of foreign trade and the resistance economy) to address an important economic problem that the Iraqi economy suffers from, and given the importance of studies in this field and the scarcity of adopting the theory of the resistance economy and its practices in the Iraqi economy in general and the foreign trade sector in particular, and not to waste the benefit From its data, this study came to investigate the dimensions of the typical form of foreign trade according to the perspective of the economy of resistance in an attempt to find theoretical and practical explanations for the repercussions of this form on the effectiveness of foreign policy on the one hand, and the sustainability of the creative and innovative development capacity of the Iraqi economy on the other hand, as the main objectives of the study focused on: Defining the typical form of foreign trade, describing the economy of resistance, and showing the availability of requirements and possibilities and all related procedures to reach the typical form of foreign trade according to the perspective of the resistance economy in Iraq in the field of goods and services, and activating the country's self-reliance in order to find an appropriate base for subsequent studies in This field, and an indication of the extent of the possibilities of this model in the Iraqi economy To face external challenges to the foreign trade sector in Iraq in the field of goods and services; Because of the influential freedoms it faces with clear exploitative dimensions, the study starts from hypotheses based on the theoretical side supported by the analytical side of the data of foreign trade and the linkage of the model form of foreign trade according to the principle of economic jihad is closely related to the resistance economy and the most prominent results reached by the researcher: Presentation of a new and rare concept represented by the resistance economy And what it is, with a view of the most important and related strategies in foreign trade, describing foreign trade as an important tool for achieving economic growth. Hence, it was necessary to take advantage of this role played by foreign trade by following confusing trade policies that would enable it to benefit from trade as a leading sector of industrial development according to the approach of resistance, and relying on the self-economy of the country. being the perfect solution. The researcher reached a set of strategies that fit the economic situation of Iraq after 2003 in the field of goods and services, and the results indicate that the Iraqi economy, economic experts and decision-makers in this regard must invest the huge natural resources granted by God, secure and effective human resources, and scientific capabilities change methods, reform and continuous improvement in local programmes. It can be said that Iraq and what it possesses, is able to adopt the approach of the resistance economy in foreign trade in the field of goods and services, and this ideal model will provide the Iraqi economy with unprecedented possibilities and opportunities to establish economic development and then achieve the resistance economy to reduce the severity of other challenges, and this is what It is discussed in the theoretical and analytical aspects of the study.
